After Service with the NSW Police, Hubert took up a position with the Navy, being in charge of the Garden Island Dockyard Police – remaining in that employ until the end of WWII, retiring again around 1947.

THE CORONATION. – Trooper H. Garlick, a popular member of Molong Mounted Rifles, proceeded to Sydney, last Thursday night, preparatory to embarking for England with the Commonwealth Horse, to take part in the Coronation festivities. This is a good thing for Hubert, and all who know him will wish him a good time on the holiday trip. His experience ought to be more agreeable than when in South Africa.

TWO POLICE HORSES ARE PENSIONED

Two 20-year-old police horses have been saved from a possible fate of being converted into soap at the boiling-down works or providing food for the lions and tigers at Taronga Park, by the action of Inspector Garlick and his troopers at the Bourke-street depot, in providing trucking expenses to Warialda, and a district grazier (Mr. H. Shiell McMaster), who has promised them no further work and free pastures for life.

They have aged in the service—they were purchased as four-year-olds—and Inspector Garlick received instructions to dispose of them.

Mr. McMaster happened to visit the depot, and offered them sanctuary for life. Members of the depot then passed round the hat, and collected the trucking expenses—£7 12s.

INSPECTOR GARLICK RETIRES —————

An echo of the famous " Coogee Bones Case " was raised yesterday by the retirement of Inspector H. G. E. Garlick, for years one of the ' Big Four ' of Sydney C.I.B. Known everywhere as 'Phil' Garlick, he was several times commended for bravery while arresting armed criminals.

Inspector Garlick is the second youngest son of the late George Garlick, who carried on a blacksmith business where Ray Shreeves' garage is now situated, in Bank Street, Molong, for over 30 years. He learned the trade before joining the police force.

He used to be a constant visitor to Molong for many years. His mother is still living, in the city. Mr. Lloyd Morris, of Cudal, Boree Shire engineer, is a nephew.

He caught that remarkable individual Frank Lord, the Cambridge scholar and poet, whom Garlick proved to be the mysterious " Foot-prints King."

Lord faced 115 charges of breaking and entering, was convicted, and left Australia after serving his sentence. His method was to manipulate locks with a pair of foot-print pliers.

When arrested by Detectives Garlick and Jones he carried a mask and a fully loaded automatic pistol.

Colorful

One of the most colorful criminals Australia has ever gaoled was apprehended by Garlick.

That was the aged Albert H. Thompson, self-styled Inventors'

Ambassador, who was sentenced to four years and three years for false pretences after obtaining £45,000 in connection with a company which he promoted.

Some years earlier Thompson had won a world award made by a New York life insurance company for writing life insurance business.

As a reward he enjoyed a world trip and wore a medal with a huge diamond in it. He even wore it in the dock, when he addressed the judge for no less than $8\frac{1}{2}$ hours, and after serving his sentence, Thompson flaunted it as he walked up the gangway to embark for U.S.A.

Woman Buried

But it was in the Coogee Bones Case that Garlick 's skill as a patient and shrewd investigator became recognised. The case made world history.

For over a year Garlick had information that a woman had been cut up and buried after an operation, and his diary recorded an accurate description of the victim. But, strangely enough, no such woman was reported missing.

Efforts to trace the burial place were unsuccessful for many months.

Then word came from England that a Mrs. Hayden was missing; Garlick investigated a city garage and found a piece of human arm bone and a couple of finger bones.

The trail led to Coogee, and police alleged that the principal in the case had died in the meantime.

But the case became famous because that brilliant young Australian, Dr. Hunter, was able to prove the weight, height, age and sex of the victim from the fragments of bone found by Garlick.

Walking about Sydney to-day is a man who was sentenced to 150 years hard labor in one day by the late Judge Docker, after being arrested by Garlick.

Another "hard case" criminal arrested several times by Garlick used to astonish both judges and juries by giving his occupation with pert unconcern as " professional burglar. "

Garlick first became a sergeant-major in the First Cavalry N.S.W. Mounted Rifles in the Boer War when he was only 18, and was selected to represent his regiment at King Edward VII's Coronation in 1902.

Spencer Broadbent, 14, of Teralba, was thrown face first on to the fence, sustaining severe abrasions to nose, contusions to the left knee, and a sprained ankle.

His companion, Allan Reid, 16, also of Teralba, struck the ground beside the fence. He escaped with abrasions to the stomach and ribs.

Part of the harness was broken, but the horse and the sulky escaped unscathed. Lake Macquarie Ambulance treated both lads, took them to a doctor, and then to their homes.

Police think of mates, share stories at Remembrance Day service at Gymea on September 29

By Eva Tejszerski

Sept. 6, 2014, 7:20 a.m.

Annual commemoration: This month there will be a remembrance day service held for retired local police officers. John Prince is a member of St George & Sutherland Shire Retired Police Organisation, is organising the event. Picture Chris Lane

WHEN a few blokes gathered at Miranda RSL Club in the 1980s, little did they know their casual chats would become a bigger event of shared memories.

Now, many of those men who formed friendships in the line of duty will join forces again at their annual commemoration of retired police officers.

The south metropolitan associated branch of the Police Association of NSW, established a decade later, is hosting its annual service at St Catherine's Catholic Church, Gymea, on September 29 – the same month as national police remembrance day.

Former police officers and the community will pay tribute to those killed on duty.

There will also be a eulogy for retired commander Henry (Harry) Brennan, of Caringbah, who died in June this year, at 86, after a 39-year career.

Mr Brennan cheated death when a shot was fired at him at point blank range. Luckily, the bullet missed.

For his bravery, he received the rare George Medal in 1956.

Retired police officer the late Harry Brennan is one of several local retired police officers who will be commemorated at a remembrance day service at Gymea this month. Picture: Police Association of NSW

Probationary constable Warren Dennis Burns, 25, was killed in 1968 when his motorbike collided with a tree in the Royal National Park.

Former police officer Denis Robert Ware, 33, was shot and killed on duty at Sutherland in 1970.

The branch has grown to about 500 members – many of whom regularly meet for social events.

Former police officer John Prince, of Caringbah, organised the service.

“Once you retire, the rest of us stay mates . . . you rely on each other so much when you work together,” he said.

The public service is at 10.30am.

Sergeant Adam Schell (1968)

In the early hours of 8 October, 1968 Sergeant Schell and Probationary Constable Dick Letchford attended Halvorsens Boats, Bobbin Head following a report of a break and enter in progress. On their arrival the police were met by the caretaker Mr Frederick Marshall and the sergeant accompanied him to check inside the premises, leaving the probationer outside. A short time later Constable Letchford apprehended two offenders whom he had seen running from the direction Sergeant Schell and Mr Marshall had taken. When police reinforcements arrived a few minutes later they were informed that Sergeant Schell and Mr Marshall had been found critically wounded in a storeroom. Mr Marshall had been shot in the head and Sergeant Schell had been shot five times in the head and body. Despite being rushed to Hornsby Hospital Sergeant Schell died a short time later. The offenders were later sentenced to life imprisonment.

Sergeant Schell was born in 1916 and joined the New South Wales Police Force on 3 July, 1939.
