Update #3: 6 months ago.

In January this year I was diagnosed with Grade 4 Glioblastoma Multiforme. I have had Radiotherapy and Chemotherapy . In June this year a portion of a second brain tumour was removed. The standard Chemotherapy used for Brain Cancer has to this date been unsuccessful and the tumour continues to grow. My biggest hurdle at present is the swelling of the brain. An alternative Chemotherapy will help with this swelling and may give me an extra couple of months with my family. There is little or no government subsidy and we have sought help through foundations which have been unsuccessful. I am asking for a small donation from my family and friends to help with the cost of further treatment.

Update #2: 6 months ago.

Thank you again to all the wonderful people who have donated. My health is poor but my heart is healed. The support and love shown by so many people is truly unbelievable.

Update #3: 3 September 2014.

To all the wonderful people out there. Please watch our video. Thank you

Former policeman guilty on two assault charges

Author: MICHELLE WEBSTER Date: 11/09/2012 Words: 414 Source: ILL	Publication: Illawarra Mercury Section: News Page: 7

SHERIFFS attempting to evict a Warrawong man from his unit were forced to call in police when he threatened the officers with a crowbar, a court has heard. Police were forced to subdue Peter Bevan Dunn, 50, with capsicum spray when he refused to co-operate with the eviction order and repeatedly threatened to hit the officers with the crowbar if they entered the property.

He was yesterday found guilty in Wollongong Local Court of hindering the sheriffs in the execution of their duties, and also assaulting a sheriff and a police officer.

A further charge of assaulting a law officer was dismissed. Sheriffs Michael Riquelme and Geraldine Trimarchi went to Dunn's Todd St unit on May 23 with an eviction notice from the Consumer, Trader and Tenancy Tribunal.

The court heard Mr Riquelme attempted to speak with Dunn through the closed screen door and explain the process, however he refused to co-operate and instead grabbed a nearby crowbar and showed it to the officers.

"He said if you do come in I will hurt you," Ms Trimarchi said.

Mr Riquelme told the court he felt fearful and, after Dunn slammed the door shut, called police.

Four officers arrived a short time later and another attempt was made to speak with Dunn, who did not answer the door.

Dunn told the court he had been in a back room using his computer and had not heard the officers.

Lake Illawarra police officer Constable Giampiero Giuri told the court Ms Trimarchi made two attempts to kick the door open without success before he managed to kick the door open, revealing Dunn standing close by holding the crowbar above his head.

Constable Giuri said Dunn was yelling and acting aggressively and, after making several requests for him to put down the crowbar, Const Giuri pushed Ms Trimarchi out of the way before subduing Dunn with capsicum spray. He was arrested and taken to Lake Illawarra Police Station.

Dunn, an ex-police officer, said he had no intention of harming the sheriffs or police and was merely protecting his property.

He told the court he had slammed the door shut out of fear he would be tasered by the sheriffs.

Magistrate Shane McAnulty found Dunn guilty of three charges – obstructing a sheriff, assaulting a law officer and assaulting a police officer. Mr McAnulty said the assault had not involved battery but he was satisfied the victims had felt an immediate threat.

He placed Dunn on a 12-month good behaviour bond.
