Dubbo Liberal and Macquarie Advocate (NSW : 1894 – 1954),
Saturday 10 September 1949, page 4

Assault Charge Against Constable Fails

A charge of unlawful assault brought against Constable Maurice George Adams of Dubbo Police, by John Perrin, 69, military pensioner, of Darling Street, was dismissed by Mr. R. A. Kersley, S.M., at Dubbo Police Court yesterday.

Perrin alleged that Constable Adams twisted his arm and tried to shove his face into the bottom of a police motorcycle sidecar when he was arrested on August 23 on an indecent language charge.

Perrin was fined £10 or ten days hard labor on this charge. On another count of using insulting words to Constable Adams and Constable John Wilson, he was fined £3 or six days.

Sergeant Russell Alfred Goggin, of Dubbo Police, said at 12.35 p.m. on August 23, he was at his home lying down when he heard Perrin, who lives near him, calling out in a loud voice about somebody having let a horse into his garden. Perrin swore in a loud voice from 12.35 p.m. until 12.55 p.m., when constables Adams and Wilson in response to a phone call, arrived in a motor cycle outfit and arrested him, the Sergeant added.

Constable Maurice George Adams said that, accompanied by Constable Wilson, he went to Perrin's house and heard him using offensive language in a loud voice, accusing the neighbors of letting a horse into his yard. He and Constable Wilson arrested Perrin and took him to the police station.

Perrin, cross-examining Constable Adams, asked, 'Do you remember saying: 'I will put the boot underneath you?' Adams: 'No.' "Or saying: 'I will bash your wife across the face' when you arrested me?' Adams: "No. I did not say anything at all." "When you got me into the motorcycle did you ram my head down into the bottom of it?' Adams: "No." Have you been a military policeman?" Adams: " No."

POLICE EVIDENCE

Evidence corroborating Constable Adam's statements was given by Constable John Phillip Wilson, who said Perrin was swearing in a loud voice when they arrived at his house.

At the station, Perrin said he wished to charge Constable Adams with assault, Constable Wilson continued. At no stage had he heard Constable Adams utter threats towards Perrin or his wife, nor had he used undue force when arresting him.

Perrin told the court he had found the horse in his garden, and a neighbor had run across the street to Sergeant Goggin's house. Shortly after, two policemen arrived and said: " We are investigating about a horse being in the garden." He was standing on the back verandah, and one of the policemen said to him: " I will put the boot underneath you." When he was arrested his wife said: " No don't take him." The policeman he said, replied: " I will push your * face in."

Perrin denied having used indecent language. Perrin claimed that what he said in front of the Police Station was that he " was being treated like two German Baths," meaning that he was not receiving fair treatment. He said the words could have been mistaken for something else. The police advanced another version of his words.

WIFE'S EVIDENCE

Perrin's wife, Irene Maude Perrin, said she discussed the presence of the horse in the garden with her husband, but they used low voices which could not possibly be heard in the street. When the policemen arrived, she showed Constable Adams the garden. He came back and grabbed Perrin's arm, and said: " You are coming with me. I'll put the toe of my boot under you." "He then twisted my husband's arm up behind his back," Mrs. Perrin said. " I told him to leave my husband alone, and he said, 'I will smash your face in for you and I will smack your face.' He then took my husband out to the side car. He tried to push his head in to the side-car of the motorcycle.

To Sergeant Goggin, Mrs. Perrin said she had not walked to the front gate, and looked up and down the street on several occasions, nor had she called out. " For God's sake keep quiet." She said someone had deliberately led a horse into the garden. Mr. Kersley convicted Perrin of the offence.

ASSAULT CHARGE

Giving evidence in his charge brought against Constable Adams

of unlawful assault, Perrin said that when he was arrested, Adams twisted his arms behind his back and tried to shove his head into the floor of the side-car.' Constable Adams again twisted his arm when he was being taken into the station and caused him considerable pain.

He was later examined by a doctor, Perrin added. Constable Adams denied Perrin's statements, and was corroborated by Constable Wilson, who said that if Const. Adams had twisted Perrin's arm, he could not have failed to notice it.

The case was dismissed.

John apparently passed away on a golf course recently – doing one of the things he loved.

Apparently John and the late T. L. Morrison disarmed a dangerous man at Campbelltown many years ago – for which they received a bravery award.

Apparently worked in Licencing Police with Wayne Geoffrey Hack (# 12564) – (RIP), Phil Clark (RIP) & Peter Danyluk (# 17630) from Macquarie Fields Police Station when Liverpool and Campbelltown Licencing Police were amalgamated.

Mayor's multicultural wardrobe

ARTHUR Frauenfelder has forged another official link with Asia thanks to Albury residents George and Ester Krooglik.

Mr and Mrs Krooglik yesterday presented Cr Frauenfelder with a traditional robe and hat from Balkhash in the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan.

It was a gift from Balkhash Mayor Tokushev Kazhmurat Abylkhairovich in exchange for Cr Frauenfelder's letter of friendship and other Albury mementoes.

Cr Frauenfelder and his wife, Julie, have previously visited China, where Albury has a sister cities link with Nanping.

Mr Krooglik, an Albury police officer, said he and his wife recently visited Kazakhstan to catch up with relatives.

"I was impressed with how Balkhash was a rural city like Albury and had a lake, too," he said.

Mr Krooglik was born in Australia of Russian parents who had lived for many years in China.

His family had left Russia after the 1917 Bolshevik revolution and lived in East Asia.

Bruce was a former Head Coach and champion rower at Penrith Rowing Club.

There are various newspaper articles about Bruce, as far back as 1947 in relation to rowing.

Sun (Sydney, NSW : 1910 – 1954), Tuesday 1 July 1952, page 1

FARMHAND, 17, CHARGED

WITH MURDER OF TAXI-DRIVER

A young Victorian farmhand was charged at Phillip St. police station at 4.30 am today with the murder of Joseph Edward Fisher, 29, Dee Why taxi-driver, at Church Point, last Saturday. He is Peter Mannington Harvie, 17½, of Eildon, a township about 60 miles from Melbourne.

Harvie was arrested shortly after midnight on Wynyard ramp, by Constable Bruce Soane and Probationary Constable Kevin Proud, who were on beat duty. It is understood Harvie approached the two constables, said something to them, and accompanied them to Phillip St. police station. Harvie was questioned by Detective-Inspectors Calman and Rogers, of the CIB Homicide Squad, and wrote out and signed a long statement.

Dressed in old clothes – a high-necked woollen sweater over a working shirt, heavy boots and an old overcoat – Harvie was taken by car to the culvert at Church Point where Fisher's body was found. He was then brought back to Phillip St. police station and charged with murder.

Melbourne lead

As the charge was read Harvie gazed straight at the sergeant without speaking, and was then locked in a cell.

Harvie appeared before Mr. Macreadie, SM, at the Children's Court, Albion St., at 10 am. Proceedings lasted only a couple of minutes.

Harvie was charged with the murder of Fisher and formally remanded until July 24, the date on which the coroner will hold the inquest. Harvie was then taken back to the CIB.

On Saturday at 11.30am Christopher Mallis, the owner of Fisher's cab, saw the cab being driven in Oxford St., Paddington, by a stranger.

Mallis stopped the cab and the stranger ran away.

Police then discovered bloodstains, a spent .22 calibre cartridge and Fisher's watch and cigarette lighter in the cab. A sawn-off pea rifle was found later in the backyard of a house near where the cab had been stopped.

Following publication of a photograph of the weapon in Melbourne newspapers yesterday, Detective Petty, of the Melbourne CIB, was visited by several youths.

Detective Petty communicated with CIB chief James Wiley, at the Sydney CIB. and detectives on the Fisher case then were instructed to search Sydney for a Victorian youth. It was while they were combing the city that Harvie was arrested by Constables Soane and Proud.

CONSTABLE B. SOANE (left) and Probationary Constable Proud, who took into custody early today a youth subsequently charged with the murder on Saturday of a Sydney taxi-driver.
